SANDING SEALERS

Sanding Sealer is a product intended to size or seal the wood in such a manner as to prevent penetration of subsequent coats. Its purpose is also to fill slight imperfections and roughness left by wood filler. In order to produce easy sanding qualities, sealers in general are not as tough and durable as gloss lacquers, and more than one coat should not be used. As sealers build more rapidly than do clear lacquers, many finishers make the mistake of putting on two or three coats of sealer. If this is done, checking sometimes occurs. You will not get into troubles due to sealer if you confine the use of this product to one coat and sand it.

Like all varnishes it is non-lifting and can be applied to any surface without danger. It is an absolute necessity to have all wax removed and a proper drying time of forty-five minutes allowed before varnish is applied.
